

Alanna Austin, Biography

Alanna Austin is a printmaker and multimedia artist from Boulder, Colorado. She graduated in May of 2022 with her MFA at the University of Colorado Boulder in Printmaking and in 2018 from the University of Colorado Boulder with BFA emphasizing in Printmaking, a BA in Anthropology and a minor in art history.

Austin is the founder of the Western Printmaking Alliance that acts as a conference for artists to come together on a digital platform once every other year to discuss work and innovative techniques.

Her main focus within her art practice is diving into the expression of mind and self through understanding dreams and memories past and present in relation to her family history and has been displayed across nationally in galleries across from coast to coast.

Her work has been exhibited across the country and she recently was featured in a solo exhibition at the Denver Art Museum and she will have a solo show upcoming in August of 2022 in Melbourne, Australia.

Austins work is also in archives spanning the United States such as Norlin Special Collection in Boulder, Colorado, Matrix Press in Montana, and more and participated in international portfolio exchanges including artists from Australia, New Zealand, Ireland and more. She currently teaches at Metropolitan State University and Front Range Community College.