President's Message

Hello Heritage Members and Supporters-

It's nice to welcome summer after the cool, rainy end of May we had. I'm definitely ready for a little warm weather. To cap off this Guild year, we have two final events planned for June. First is our annual dinner, noted above. The second event is our last workshop until the fall. Colorist/expressionist Lance Green will conduct a workshop on June 18 where participants can experiment with fluorescent acrylics in addition to their favorite other paint colors. Details on how to register are below in this newsletter.

I want to take a moment to thank all of our current Board members for doing exceptional work to keep our Guild going during the pandemic and for supporting me for the last two years. The Board made quite a few changes to our operations during this time. Some, like Zoom meetings and online jurying, were necessitated by the lack of opportunities for in-person gatherings. Other changes were made to increase efficiency and expand some of the opportunities for members. This included new venues such as the Alley Arts Gallery, St. Andrew Church and Evolution Salon, and adding digital art to what will be accepted in mixed media pieces at the This is Colorado show.

I also want to thank the other members who helped find our new venues, organize the shows, hang paintings, bring refreshments to meetings, and assist with workshops. We are only as strong as the people willing to make contributions and I've been grateful to work alongside all of these wonderful Guild members.

I hope you enjoy the summer, have lots of time to paint, and come back in September recharged and ready to take on another year of creativity with your friends at the Heritage Fine Arts Guild.

May Highlights

Paint with Phyllis Vandelaar
Saturday, May 28, 2022

Phyllis Vandelaar led a fun and engaging workshop where the participants were asked to stretch their imagination, combining different art materials. Phyllis provided the participants with three different color papers with spider-like webbing sprayed on them. The first exercise was watercolor on white paper to create a non-objective design. The second was a gray paper used to create a theme in pastels. The third, a black piece of paper was used to create a realistic or abstract theme using torn paper. Throughout the workshop Phyllis used demonstrations and her own artwork to explain the how and why of using certain techniques. In addition, Phyllis provided encouragement and suggestions to the participants on how they could improve the artwork. This was an educational workshop with lots of new and interesting techniques.

Thanks to Frank Weaver for this wonderful review.

My name is Vikki Strong, and I live in a building that Catholic Charities has subsidized rent for seniors and people with disabilities. Now that the covid restrictions are lifted, our art group has restarted. We have a dedicated small group. Catholic Charities doesn't supply art materials, so we rely on donations.

We may not hear very well or are handicapped, but we love getting together for our "art class." We help each other and give our opinions about each other's process in painting. The leader of our group is Jeff. Jeff was born with his arms not fully developed, it doesn't matter, Jeff paints up a storm. Others in our group have created art for years and a few like me are learning as much as we can. It is a lovely two hours, and we would gratefully appreciate materials so we can keep our group going. Items we could use:

Canvas
Acrylic paints
Other art materials like oil pastels brushes

Thank you for your consideration. Higgins Plaza residents will be so appreciative

BMoCA Announces an Exciting Future

A Future BMoCA

Inspiring creativity and fostering community

Conceptual vignette by Jerry Shapins.

Friends of BMoCA,

In 2022, BMoCA celebrates 50 years of artistic innovation and creative experiences. Thanks to our incredible community, the museum is looking forward to a bright future. Your involvement with BMoCA has been instrumental, and we are grateful.

Over the last several years we have been conceptualizing how BMoCA can continue fulfilling its mission to inspire creativity and foster community for many years to come. We are excited to announce that we are now ready to engage the community in the process of envisioning a new BMoCA facility in North Boulder.

Our goal is to create a state-of-the-art museum that will serve the Boulder community by:

- Strengthening our impact
- Amplifying the voices of artists
- Building community

The potential site for BMoCA in North Boulder is on a parcel of land bounded by Violet Avenue, Broadway, and 10th Street. The new museum will be an arts anchor for a mixed-use “creative campus” envisioned by Boulder-based Emerald Development as a site for inclusive spaces for artist studios, housing, retail, and open space. We are excited to participate in an extensive community engagement process to further define the creative campus. The process will be led by Emerald Development and facilitated by consultants Centro and Ford Momentum, who have worked extensively with arts districts and are committed to accessibility and inclusion.

Additionally, BMoCA is working with the community to determine the museum’s site amenities, general design, and community programming. BMoCA needs your input about our new facility, and we hope you will join the conversation. Your ideas and feedback will be critical in shaping the museum's future.

You can learn more about the project HERE. To get updates on planning and receive information about community engagement opportunities, subscribe HERE. In the meantime, if you have feedback or questions feel free to email us at future@bmoca.org.

We are honored to work with you and our community partners to imagine and build a museum that will carry us into the next 50 years and increase the impact of the arts. Our community partners include the Boulder Chamber, City of Boulder Office of Arts and Culture, Create Boulder, and the NoBo Art District. They support our community-driven process for envisioning a new North Boulder building and share our commitment to an inclusive facility that ensures everyone has access to all that art offers to our lives.

We look forward to talking with you about our future – one of creativity and community.

Sincerely,
